Roland's interest in computers started in 1967 and he has been building and programming them ever since.

He has served on the board for the last three years and is willing to serve again.

In the last year, he has been speaker co-ordinator. It's a fair bit of work but he's willing to try and improve on those skills.

He isn't a very power hungry individual. If anyone wants to take his place on the board or as speaker co-ordinator, they are welcome to do so. He encourages others to contribute their skills to OCLUG.

He has some knowledge and opinions about Unix/Linux sysadmin, window managers, user interfaces, Emacs, VMware and Perl and is occasionally persuaded to talk about them.
